The Gwinnett Place CID is pleased to welcome those staging and attending this year's annual Vietnamese New Year celebration taking place at a District-member venue.

The Vietnamese American Community of Georgia has selected the Gwinnett Prado (2300 Pleasant Hill Road in Duluth) as the site of this year's annual celebration, which is occurring this Sunday. During the special "Year of the Rat" gathering, all communities are invited to join in cultural festivities open to everyone.

"We welcome special events such as this as a way for people from far and wide to experience everything Gwinnett Place has to offer," said Joe Allen, CID Executive Director. "We appreciate the leadership of the Vietnamese American Community of Georgia for selecting our area for their traditional celebration."

Event organizers said guests can expect authentic Vietnamese foods, arts, crafts, lion dances, folk dance, talent shows, martial art demonstrations and other live entertainment. Highlights of the festival include the Miss Vietnam of Georgia Pageant, Male Elegance Contest, Golden Voice Karaoke Contest and Children Traditional Talent Show.

The festival will take place from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 10. Admission is $7 for adults and $5 for children.
